

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

A National seminar on 'Indigenous Nanomaterials Development for Industrial Applications (INDIA)' is being organized by Centre for Nanoscience and Technology, Anna University, Chennai, during 27-28th February 2012. The theme emphasizes the significance of materials development, various characteristics and optimism regarding the potential research and application of Nanotechnology, highlighting the basic research and its utilization in various disciplines like Material Science, Biotechnology, Robotics and Photonics etc. This would be a great platform for the interaction of students and reputed researchers as we would have a pool of aspiring researchers and scientists. It also opens up vistas by disseminating the recent research and industrial applications. Further, it pave way for industrialists to innovate modern products which ease the processing and help for the betterment of people.

FOCUSSED AREAS

Nanobiotechnology
Nanomechanics
Nanoelectronics
Nanomedicine
Nanofabrication
Nanomaterials
Nanotoxicology
Nano in agriculture
Nano energy systems
Photonics
MEMS & NEMS

OUR CHRONICLE

UNIVERSITY

Anna University is the foremost university in Tamilnadu, India which was formed on September 4, 1978 by integrating four technical institutions including College Of Engineering Guindy, Alagappa College Of Technology, Madras Institute of Technology and School of Architecture of Planning. It has been providing quality education in Engineering and Technology fields and also nurtures the young minds to achieve industrial development.

Currently the university has supports various self-financing engineering colleges, Government colleges and Government aided colleges in and around Tamilnadu.

CENTRE FOR NANOSCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Centre for nanoscience and technology was established in 2005 and has been recognized by Department of Science and Technology (DST) with a financial assistantship of 5 crores. The centre has been actively pursuing research in several areas of nanoscience and technology and also conducts world class training and extension activities including an academic program. The centre is conducting the 4th edition of the nanomeet.
