THE WORKSHOP

THEME

A Webservice is an interface that exposes a set of tasks available on a network. Pervasive computing is often defined as the smart computing environment in which the services are seamlessly blended into the environment without the user being aware of it, and thus allowing users to access and manipulate information where and when it matters, even while on the move. The Webservice model offers a more general view of pervasive computing by extending the configuration to support the invocation of services by various heterogeneous devices. The theme of the workshop is to integrate SOAP communication services to pervasive devices.

AIM

The aim of this workshop is to provide an opportunity to teachers, researchers and professionals to get a first hand knowledge of technology perspectives of the emerging areas of web service, with hands-on sessions.
