Organized by
DEPARTMENT OF PLANNING
School of Architecture and Planning,
Anna University, Chennai - 25
ABOUT THE INSTITUTION
Anna University, established in the year 1978, offers higher education in the fields of Engineering, Technology, Allied Sciences, Planning, Architecture and Management. The Department of Planning at the School of Architecture and Planning, Anna University (Main Campus), Chennai offers Master’s Degree (M.Plan) and Doctoral Programmes in Planning. The Department of Planning is the only institution offering Planning Programmes in the state of Tamil Nadu. The M.Plan Programme is being offered by the department since the year 1964.

THE PROGRAMME
The objective of this Faculty Development Training Programme (FDTP) is to enrich the faculty with a comprehensive knowledge in planning, design, construction and financing of housing projects. The Programme is intended to broadly cover the content of the course ‘Housing Planning & Management’ offered as Elective II, under Regulation 2008 for the students of B.E (Civil Engineering) programme. Apart from the faculty of the School of Architecture and Planning, Anna University, Resource Persons will also be drawn from the Corporate and Public Agencies involved in the task of providing the shelter for the people.

IMPORTANCE OF THE PROGRAMME
Rapid growth in urban population and rising level of income makes the housing industry as one of the important and fastest growing sectors of Indian economy. At the same time, nearly 19 million households grapple with housing shortage in Urban India (2012), as per the estimate provided by the Ministry of Housing & Urban Poverty Alleviation. Thus the housing sector faces several challenges and the engineers play a vital role in meeting these challenges. Dissemination of knowledge in Housing Planning and Design, innovative and modern technology, options in building materials and financing are considered as very important and hence this programme is offered.
