At present, the University offers 33 undergraduate and 53 postgraduate degree programmes and research programmes leading to M.S. and Doctoral Degree in various branches of Engineering/Technology and Applied Sciences. As many as 534 Engineering Colleges are affiliated to this University.

About the Department

The Centre for Environmental Studies (CES) was established as a Division of Public Health Engineering, College of Engineering Guindy originated in the year 1955 with the assistance from the World Health Organization (WHO). Later in 1982, the Centre was gloriously developed into Centre for Environmental Studies. The Centre has made a significant contribution in the field of Environment with the keen focus on Environmental Education, Research and extension activities successfully for the past 58 years. The Centre has a rich tradition of teaching, continuing education, research, consultancy and extension programmes.

Infrastructure facilities available at the Centre include an advanced Research Laboratory, Analytical Laboratory, Environmental Microbiology Laboratory, Unit Operation and Processes Engineering Laboratory, Tool Room, Computing Facility and Environmental Information Centre. All the laboratories in the Centre have been upgraded to International Standards.

Scope of Seminar

Among the wastewaters produced such as domestic wastewater and Industrial Wastewater, the Industrial wastewater is well-known for its toxicity apart from the organic and other nutrients present. Due to rapid Industrialisation, the wastewater production in different sectors have increased appreciably over the period. There are different technologies being used in Industry for the treatment of wastewater. However, the availability of affordable technologies which satisfy the requirement of each Industry is still an enigma. Emerging trends give importance to appropriate technology with zero discharge concept for reuse of Wastewater within industry to reduce the treatment cost and thereby reduce the pollution load on the environment.
